Ho Weng Si
Executive Vice President & Member of the Executive Committee

Singapore Economic Development Board

Ms Ho Weng Si is an Executive Vice President at the Singapore Economic Development Board (EDB). She oversees the Services and Global Enterprises groups in EDB, as well as the DesignSingapore Council. Industry sectors under her purview include Consumer, Professional Services, Logistics and Supply Chain Management. She also oversees the Hub Strategy group, which drives strategies to strengthen Singapore as a global business hub.

Prior to her current appointment, Weng Si was Senior Vice President, Industry Manpower Development. In this role, she led manpower planning, policies and strategies, and oversaw the implementation of workforce development programmes to ensure a strong talent pipeline for Singapore's key industries.

Weng Si previously served as Director, Successful Ageing in the Ageing Planning Office at the Ministry of Health. There, she led teams that worked with multiple stakeholders to define, plan and execute national strategies to harness the potential of Singapore's ageing population, under the Action Plan for Successful Ageing and AgeWell SG.

Weng Si started her career in EDB in the Biomedical Sciences division, before becoming Centre Director of EDB's New York office, where she led EDB's engagements of Technology, Media, Healthcare and Engineering companies across the Eastern United States. She also served as Director, Healthcare at EDB, overseeing the development of the Healthcare industry in Singapore across established sub-sectors like Pharmaceuticals and Medical Technology, as well as emergent areas like Digital Health.

Weng Si has a BSc in Biomedical Engineering with a minor in Economics from Columbia University, and MSc in Engineering Sciences from Harvard University. She has an Executive MBA from INSEAD.
